Rationale At second year, we have a large number of required courses, a non-credit seminar that students enrol in will allow us to arrange field trips and related activities outside of scheduled lecture hours. This will avoid course conflicts and ensure that students are able to attend these activities. The current academic plan calls for greater engagement and experiential learning for our students and such a seminar will allow us to achieve us. Emphasis will be placed on therapeutic recreation practices, especially those utilising the out-of-doors as the primary medium. Theoretical and applied aspects of the topic area will merge during visits to institutional and community programs. Drawing on service-learning as a delivery method, students will experience therapeutic recreation/nature-base therapy through a local community service provider.
