Local artist Jessica (Robinson) Mamakeesick is an Oji-Cree woman with roots in Sandy Lake and Keewaywin, Ontario. The artwork featured above, titled “Inner Strength”, is a visual interpretation of the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law’s commitment to reconciliation, access to justice, and a healthy and prosperous environment. The feather is in the shape of Nanaboozhoo (The Sleeping Giant) and represents strength, wisdom, trust, honour, and the connection to the Creator. The circle shape is important to Indigenous cultures and speaks to continuity, community, balance, and unity. The floral and berry designs represent life’s abundance, survival, healing, and vitality; a reminder of the connection to land, to sky above, and to waters below.

Greetings! Boozhoo! Aaniin!

Located on the breathtaking shores of Lake Superior in Northwestern Ontario, the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law is no ordinary law school.

Established in 2013 as the first law school to introduce the Integrated Practice Curriculum (IPC), the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law has a proven track record of producing practice-ready graduates. The journey from law student to lawyer requires a new way of thinking, analyzing and problem solving. With an incoming class of only 90 students, we are able to provide an intimate and personalized legal education that allows our students to thrive. Our distinguished faculty members and invested local practitioners are committed to guiding our students along their Juris Doctor (JD) journey.

The Bora Laskin Faculty of Law is committed to making a difference, providing access to justice and leading the way for northern communities. Along with core law subjects, our students engage in the areas of Indigenous and Aboriginal Law, Natural Resources and Environmental Law, and Sole/ Small Town Practice.

We believe the best learning comes from a fusion of theory and practice. The IPC integrates the theory of law with practical skills from day one; students complete skills based exercises throughout all three years of their coursework. By the time our students graduate, they will have drafted legal memorandums, opinions letters and contracts; they will have interviewed clients, conducted sentencing submissions and bail hearings, conducted a full civil trial and engaged in a multi-party negotiation. In their third year, they put those skills to use in a four-month Practice Placement where they hone their legal acumen under the supervision of a practicing lawyer.

When we say our graduates are practice-ready, we aren't joking! Upon graduation, our students will have met the Law Society of Ontario's experiential training requirement; they do not need to article, and are eligible to write the Ontario bar admission exams and become licensed to practice.

The Lakehead Advantage

Why Choose the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law?

Graduate with advanced legal skills from our Integrated Practice Curriculum (IPC) that will prepare you for the practice of law

With a focus on small firm practice, we support our students to become thoughtful and effective lawyers in all legal environments. Skill development exercises are incorporated into all three years of the JD program, capped by a four month Practice Placement in third year. Our students are experiencing success on Bay St., clerking for all levels of court in Canada, and working in smaller firms, government offices, legal aid clinics and not-for profit organizations across Ontario.

Specialize in Indigenous and Aboriginal Law

All students have an opportunity to specialize in Indigenous and Aboriginal Law. The specialization is designed to provide students with the concentrated knowledge and skills necessary to understand Indigenous peoples' beliefs, cultures, histories and governance practices, as well as the sets of laws and legislation that govern Indigenous people's lives. In addition to the three mandatory Aboriginal and Indigenous Law courses, students must complete 1.0 FCE from a list of approved electives in order to obtain this designation.

Learn from outstanding and committed professors while attending class in a welcoming environment

Our law school is located in a beautiful, historic building overlooking Lake Superior. Thunder Bay is the hub of northwestern Ontario and a great city to live, play and learn. Our class sizes are small and professors and staff know you by name and genuinely care about your success. We take great pride in fostering a warm and welcoming atmosphere that is conducive to a rich learning experience.

A Unique Approach to Legal Education

INTEGRATED PRACTICE CURRICULUM (IPC)

The Bora Laskin Faculty of Law's innovative IPC model of legal education fuses the theory of law with the practice of law. Students not only develop substantive legal knowledge, but also learn the necessary practical legal skills to use that legal knowledge effectively. IPC legal skills are taught progressively so that they build one upon the other, course by course, year by year.

The 3L 4-month Practice Placement component of the IPC places students in law firms and organizations across Ontario, allowing them the full experience of working as a law student in an area of law that interests them. Throughout their Practice Placement, students will be given the opportunity to develop and refine, in a practice setting, the relevant competencies and skills developed throughout the IPC law program in first and second year.

Students will have the option to article after graduation if they wish; however, upon the completion of the IPC and graduation from the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law, students are eligible to sit for the Ontario bar exams and be called to the bar without the need to article.

THE MINO-WAABANDAN INAAKONIGEWINAN INDIGENOUS LAW AND JUSTICE INSTITUTE & OFFICE OF INDIGENOUS RELATIONS

The Institute was launched in response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Call to Action #50, which calls for the creation of Indigenous law institutes to support access to justice for Indigenous people and to revitalize Indigenous laws. The Institute works closely with our Office of Indigenous Relations to mentor, support and advise our Indigenous students and allies.

The Institute works with Indigenous communities and organizations by invitation to:

- identify, articulate and develop Indigenous laws, legal principles and systems;
- promote access to both Indigenous legal systems and the Canadian justice system by developing and delivering public legal education;
- develop and strengthen curriculum at the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law by promoting land-based teaching practices and increased cultural competency; and
- produce academic research, including tools and publications, that supports the revitalization of Indigenous laws and access to justice.

LAND-BASED LEARNING AT THE BORA LASKIN FACULTY OF LAW

To revitalize Indigenous legal orders within the curriculum, the Faculty of Law provides educational opportunities that center the land and Indigenous pedagogies. Indigenous Perspectives is a mandatory 1L course that includes a three-day intensive law camp, named Gaa-maada'ooniding in Anishinaabemowin, which means "the place where we share our laws with one another." Gaa-maada'ooniding Law Camp is hosted on the traditional territory of Anemki Wajiw (Fort William First Nation) and the programming is developed and delivered in collaboration with local elders and knowledge keepers. During Law Camp, students engage with Indigenous legal orders by participating in sharing circles, ceremony, and land-based practices such as harvesting and crafting. The Bora Laskin Faculty of Law is the only law program in Canada with a mandatory land-based course requirement.

The Faculty of Law also supports and encourages students to participate in community land-based learning events. The Indigenous Law and Justice Institute team visits Anemki Wajiw's Sugar Bush annually as well as Anemki Wajiw's Hide Tanning Camp. Students are invited to participate alongside the Institute team.

Students have also been invited to Treaty #3 territory to visit the Kay-nah-chi-wah-nung Historical Centre and Rainy River First Nations to learn about the Manitou Burial Mounds sacred site, the history of Treaty #3, governance, economic development, and policing in the community, and cultural teachings and demonstrations.

These community land-based activities allow students to deepen their understanding of Indigenous legal orders and build strong reciprocal relationships with community.

Clinical Opportunities

LAKEHEAD UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY LEGAL SERVICES (LUCLS)

LUCLS works in conjunction with Bora Laskin Faculty of Law students to offer free legal services to residents within the District of Thunder Bay including Fort William First Nation and the Municipality of Greenstone. Our free legal services help provide access to justice for low-income individuals who would not otherwise be able to afford the assistance of a lawyer, including people living with physical and mental disabilities as well as Indigenous persons and other diverse groups. Located in Lakehead University's Faculty of Law building, LUCLS offers services in the following practice areas:

- Minor Criminal Offences
- Serious Provincial Offences
- Tenant Rights
- Small Claims Court and Civil disputes under $35,000
- Employment Law

One of the main goals at LUCLS is to provide a practical clinical education program for law students. Second and third year law students have the opportunity to work in the clinic, under the direct supervision of our experienced review counsel for academic credit. Students have full carriage of their files. Their work in the clinic allows them to gain valuable experience interviewing clients, drafting legal documents, negotiating with opposing parties, and attending court and tribunals to conduct motions, hearings and trials. LUCLS also offers paid summer positions and a Practice Placement is an option in 3L. There are also volunteer opportunities throughout the school year for any law student to assist with community outreach.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW CLINIC

A recent addition, Lakehead University has launched an Intellectual Property Law Clinic, offering free legal services around intellectual property for students, faculty, and entrepreneurs. The clinic is open and running through Ingenuity, Lakehead's business incubator, in partnership with the Faculty of Law.

THE NEWCOMER LEGAL CLINIC

The Newcomer Legal Clinic was established with a grant from The Law Foundation of Ontario to serve the legal needs of migrants and refugees in Northwestern Ontario. It is the only legal clinic offering free immigration and refugee law services in our region. Students have the opportunity to work with and learn about the unique legal needs of migrants living in northern and remote communities.

Admissions

The Bora Laskin Faculty of Law takes a holistic approach when considering admission to the three-year Juris Doctor (JD) program. This means there are no specific weights put on individual components of the application, nor are there minimum grade point average (GPA) or LSAT scores. Every piece of the application contributes to the bigger picture of who you are as an applicant.

We consider:

- Academic Record
Applicants submit all transcripts from any postsecondary institution they attended. While we use a cumulative GPA to help assess our candidates, we also review all transcripts. Competitive candidates are usually achieving a minimum of 75-80% average in their final two years.
- Law School Admission Test (LSAT) Scores
If you write the LSAT more than once, the highest test result will be used for admission. Lakehead does not set a minimum LSAT score requirement. The weight given to the LSAT varies depending on the fulfillment of other elements of the application.
- Personal Statement
The Personal Statement provides you with the opportunity to discuss your strengths, capabilities and achievements that distinguish you as a desirable applicant. You may wish to include information about what led you to apply to study law, your preparedness for the study of law and your interest in the Bora Laskin Faculty of Law.
- Autobiographical sketch
A detailed and comprehensive list of your activities since high school in the areas of employment, volunteer experiences, extracurricular, awards and other achievements.
- Letters of reference
You must provide at least 2 letters of reference, preferably academic. Carefully consider your referees. Referees should have extensive personal knowledge of you to make statements about your character, personal qualities, academic competencies, employment performance, volunteer contributions and other areas that may be of interest to the Admissions Committee.
- Supporting documentation as required

The Bora Laskin Faculty of Law strives to recognize, support and foster diversity within its content, structure and people. We recognize that every applicant is unique and complex, and the Admissions Committee is looking for academically strong, well-rounded and diverse candidates to make up our next class. Preference will be given to candidates who demonstrate a genuine interest in our mandate areas, especially those interested in serving smaller communities.
